TELEGRAMS TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

The HERALD correspondent at the head quarters of the revolutionists in Northern Mexico has forwarded us the following special despatch:

HEADQUARTERS TREVINO'S ARMY, REYNOSA, Mexico, May 6, Via Brownsville, Texas, May 7, 1872.

A visit by your correspondent to this (revolutionary) camp plainly reveals to him the state of Treviño's forces, and the reason why their attack on Matamoros has so ignominiously failed.

The number of the revolutionists at the outset of the attack has been variously reported, but, whatever may have been their original strength, I have by personal observation gained the information that their present number is far inferior to what it was stated to be at first. I counted the troops of Treviño as they were moving out this morning, and find that he has now only eleven cannon, 700 infantry and 400 cavalry at his disposal. The balance have deserted, singly or in small bands, and are carrying on depredations on the peaceable inhabitants.

TREVINO'S ARMY IN A TERRIBLE STATE.

The scattered army is completely demoralized and destitute of the most immediate necessaries of life, such as food and clothing, &c. The officers are dismounted and shoeless and the few animals left can hardly walk. The men, being without pay and food, are stealing or begging. All the horses and cattle of this part of the country have been swept away, and the revolutionists are now without the means of swift escape and in great fear of pursuit by the forces of General Cevallos. Should the government troops at this moment appear this force would dissolve and abandon wagons, artillery and all the war material.

It is evident that General Treviño never intended to make an attack on Matamoros. His force was at the best not large enough to invest the city or even oppose in open field the reinforced garrison of Cevallos.

He was deceived by the report that the National Guard would prove false to the goverument and open the gates of the city to him. But, instead of this expected aid, the National Guard of Matamoros vied with the regular troops in their determination to defend the fortifications. When thus undeceived General Treviño retired and gave up the attempt of capturing the city.

TREVINO TO THE HERALD CORBESPONDENT. In conversation with your correspondent, General Treviño said that President Juarez is certain to be overthrown by this or another revolution. He predicts that, in case of the failure of the present rising, a more formidable one would break out soon afterwards.

But your correspondent has ascertained by mingling with his officers and men that they have no confidence in their commander or the success of the revolution. Nor is there any ground for the exaggerated reports of the strength of the revolutionists in the interior of the country. The truth is that there is no revolutionary force of any magnitude. There are only small bands existing in the various States. Their avowed object is war against the Juarez government; but their principal occupation consists in preying on the people.

DIAZ BELIEVED DEAD.

It is the general opinion among the revolutionary leaders here that General Porfirio Diaz is dead, and that the report of his being in Jalisco is untrue.

There is nothing known of the government operations in the interior, nor are there any signs of any Juarist force coming hither. By present appearances the government with 2,000 troops could pacify the whole northern frontier of the republic. THE DEATH BLOW TO THE REVOLUTION. Many commissioners from the interior have arrived at Treviño's headquarters. They expected to buy arms after Matamoros was taken by the revolutionists. They now regard the failure to capture the city as the death blow to the revolution. Part of Treviño's troops have just started for Camargo. Troviño says that they will remain there to await the attack of General presented to Her Majesty.

Cevallos; but it is impossible that they will expose themselves to certain defeat, being too few in number and too demoralized to resist the government troops. They will doubtless go to Monterey.

Cortina, the Patron of the Mexican Cattle Thieves, Removed-Cevallos in Pursuit of the Revolutionists.

General Cortina, so long in command on this line, who has been the patron and supporter of the Mexican cattle thieves in their raids on the Texan border, has been relieved and ordered to proceed to the City of Mexico. This action of the government will do much towards stopping the depredations in Texas.

General Cevallos will move out soon in pursuit of the revolutionists.

The telegraph constructors will commence repairing the line to Reynosa to-morrow.

The Revolutionists Marching on Camargo-Junrez Recovering the Whole Country. MATAMOROS, May 7, 1872.

The revolutionists broke camp yesterday near Reynosa and are returning to Camargo. General Cevallo will disband the national guard to-morrow, as their services are no longer required. Arrivals to-day from the interior report nothing of interest. General Rossa holds Zacatecas.

General Correilles' forces hold the city and State of San Louis Potosi. The government is gradually recovering the whole country lately under the insurgents' control. Treviño's and Quirroga's forces are the only ones of any importance in Northern Mexico.

A GRAND DIFFICULTY FOR THE CABINET. The question of public education in Scotland promises to present a Parliamentary difficulty for the Gladstone government just as prominent as does the same subject in Ireland. Ministerial efforts to temporize with secularists will be resisted to the last, and on this, at all events, the Scotch are ardent "home rulers," A large meeting has been held in Edinburg respecting the Scotch Education bill, and, after a long discussion, the government measure was con-demned as "withdrawing all securities for religious instruction and placing Scotch education under a London department."

Military Precaution Against Tumult in Copenhagen-Prosecution for High Treason Against the Prisoners.

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

COPENHAGEN, May 7, 1872. The action of the police authorities in forbidding the members of the International Society from holding a meeting in this city on Sunday, and the subsequent arrest of the President and Treasurer of the branch here, gave rise to great excitement among the members of the organization.

A large number gathered in the streets and created considerable alarm by their violent denunclations of the government.

They were finally dispersed by the police, and at present all is quiet. It has been deemed prudent, however, to place a military guard around all the public buildings and the palaces until the excitement has entirely subsided.

The leading members of the society in this city will be prosecuted for high treason.

The police are adopting energetic measures to suppress any tumult which may arise.

(Prom. the Toronto Clobe, May 5.1 It would seem there is good ground for believing that Dr. Livingstone is safe, and likely soon to be in England. The telegraph from Bombay conveys the intelligence that the vessel Abydos, that took the Livingstone search expedition to Zanzibar, has brought news that the Doctor had met with Mr. Stanley, the correspondent of the NEW YORK HERALD, and that both were safe in the interior We have been so often deceived, however, by rumors of one kind and another that it will be as well not to be too excited and enthusiastic over the intelligence till something more definite and reliable

It is very evident that no letter must as yet have come from the Doctor himself, for Dr. Kirk would never have allowed the opportunity of the Abydos going to Bombay without forwarding such a pre cious and assuring document, along with some communication from himself detailing the circumstances so far as known. There is not a hint of anything like this having been done, or any message from Dr. Kirk at all. Rumor may have been busy, but rumor is proverbially unreliable; and while, therefore, we would be most anxious to persuade our selves that the story is perfectly authentic, we wait further confirmation before being persuaded that there is not the slightest mistake this time. Should it turn out to be the fact, as we unfeignedly trust it will, that Livingstone comes among us again as alive from the dead, what an amount of information he will have to give and what a lion he will be! And in that case also the New York HERALD will richly merit the applause and grati tude of the world in having so energetically and successfully come to the rescue of one who had been given up as lost. Not a few ridicule the story of the HERALD's having a commissioner in Africa a all, and affirm that all its narratives of adventure by Stanley have been concocted in New York. This is far from the fact. There can be no question that there is such a man as Mr. Stanley, and that he has been on the track of Dr. Livingstone for some time. Whether all his representations and narratives are genuine is quite another question. Time will speed ily try; and if the world has been too sceptical of the HERALD and its doings, no doubt it will be ready

(From the Titusville (Pa.) Herald, May 6.] Dr. Livingstone, the great explorer of Africa, long ago missing and supposed to be dead, has at last turned up again. The discovery of his whereabouts ought to have been the work of the learned scien title societies of Europe or of the English government. But it was left to American enterprise to perform this rare work of courage and humanity. Or, rather, the credit is solely due to the NEW YORK HERALD, which, by this grand achievement, has added the last crowning proof of its pre-eminence as a cosmopolitan journal with the whole earth for its province. Taking into account all the circumstances of the case, the expense, the difficulties, the peril, this service which the NEW YORK HERALD has performed is most extraordinary in all its aspects, and no American can fail to feel a glow of pride and admiration for its unparalleled enter-The HERALD, in this remote and costly pro ceeding, has only acted on the well-known princi-ple which it has for years laid down for itself, to give the earliest and most reliable intelligence on all subjects of interest to the world, at whatever

UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD.

The Officials in Consultation at Chicago on the Transfer Muddle-President Clark's Views.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 7, 1872. The principal officers of the Union Pacific Railroad, including President Clark, Vice President Duff, Augustus Schell, J. H. Barker and George M. Pullman and the Executive Committee, were in consultation here yesterday with Superintendent Sickles, of that road, and General Ticket Agent Kimball, in reference to the present transfer arrangements at Omaha. After a full discussion of all the facts in the case the conclusion arrived at is that the transfer business as now transacted is work-interested, and that it is not advisable to make any change, at least at present.

The Tritume publishes an interview of its reporter with President Horace F. Clark, of the Union Pacific Railroad Company, in reference to the transfer controversy between Omaha and Council Busis, President Clark says the Union Pacific road had its controversy between Omaha and Council Bluffs, President Clark says the Union Pacific road had its eastern terminus on the west bank of the Missouri River, in order to facilitate the transfer of passengers and freight. Upon the completion of the bridge the Iowa roads, whose termini were upon the east side of the river, sought to compet the delivery of all freight and passengers upon their territory; they refused to run their trains through to Omaha, or permit them to be run by any transfer company. The Union Pacific Company had no legal authority, and was prohibited by its contracts with Omaha and Douglas county from making transfers on the Iowa side. They therefore contracted temporarily with a third party to transfer over the bridge.

President Clark says it is really a fight between St. Louis and Chicago, and if the Iowa roads see proper to force the traffic from Omaha down the west side of the river to St. Louis, the Union Pacific Company is not responsible for the damage which may ensue to Chicago interests.
